Preface

The syllabus book outlines the broad objectives, structure, and content of the B.A. in Political Science program. It serves as a guiding framework, offering both depth and flexibility to accommodate the evolving landscape of political thought, governance, and global affairs. The syllabus is designed to provide a foundational understanding of political theories, institutions, processes, and contemporary issues while fostering critical engagement with historical and emerging political developments.

This course introduces students to key concepts, trends, and debates in areas such as political theory, comparative politics, international relations, public administration, and Indian politics. It explores governance structures, democratic processes, policy-making, and the role of political institutions in shaping societies. By integrating theoretical knowledge with real-world examples and case studies, the program aims to develop analytical and critical thinking skills essential for further academic pursuits, civil services, journalism, law, and related fields.

This preface has been prepared for the B.A. in Political Science program to serve as a reference for students and educators in understanding the scope and direction of the course.

1. Introduction of the School

The School of Arts & Humanities is a distinguished institution dedicated to fostering intellectual growth, creativity, and critical inquiry. Our school provides a dynamic and interdisciplinary academic environment where students engage with diverse fields, including literature, philosophy, history, political science, and cultural studies. Through a curriculum that blends theoretical foundations with analytical and practical applications, we encourage students to explore the complexities of human society, governance, and thought.

Guided by experienced faculty and scholars, students develop a strong foundation in critical thinking, research, and communication skills. They gain a deeper understanding of historical and contemporary issues, preparing them to contribute meaningfully to academic, cultural, and social discourse. Upon graduation, students are well-equipped to pursue careers in public service, media, law, research, civil society, and other professional fields, driven by a commitment to knowledge, ethics, and social responsibility.

2. Introduction of the Program

The Bachelor of Arts in Political Science program offers a broad and foundational curriculum designed to equip students with the knowledge, analytical skills, and critical perspectives necessary to understand and engage with political systems, governance, and global affairs. The program provides a strong grounding in political theory, comparative politics, international relations, public administration, and Indian politics, fostering an informed and analytical approach to contemporary political challenges.

Emphasizing critical thinking, research skills, and effective communication, this program nurtures intellectual curiosity and ethical reasoning. It encourages students to actively engage in discussions on democracy, governance, policy-making, and political institutions. The curriculum is structured to prepare students for further studies, competitive examinations, public service, journalism, law, and various professional careers in political and social fields.

This program is designed to produce socially responsible and critically engaged graduates who can contribute meaningfully to academic research, public administration, policy-making, and civic engagement, with a strong focus on understanding governance structures, political behavior, and societal change.
